SynthYoga

Yoga that talks you through every pose

Pick a routine, press play and follow spoken pose names, alignment cues and breath pacing — so you can keep your eyes on the mat. About 290 3D poses are open data anyone can help refine, with free tools for community classes and a studio system that costs almost nothing to run.

For your students

- Spoken pose names, alignment and muscle cues, with optional inhale and exhale pacing
- A 3D body shows every pose from any angle, with a preview of what comes next
- Quick starts for how you feel today: wake up, wind down, desk stiffness, low back, calm or strength
- About 290 poses in 3D, by muscle or as a photo, with Sanskrit names — open data you can help improve
- Optional live camera feedback with spoken alignment tips. Video never leaves the phone
- Programs, streaks, reminders, guided meditations, breathwork and Practice Together

For yoga teachers

- Build sequences with sections, music and hold times; share as a link or QR for home practice
- Free directory listing; free community classes cost nothing to run on every plan
- Booking that only ever shows you: passes, waitlists, policies and Stripe payouts
- One-to-one coaching, plus free class places and class swaps with other coaching teachers
- Printables: A4 handouts of your listing, schedule, routines, poses and blog posts
- No lock-in: export your studio in documented formats; practice data stays on the student's device

Built for community classes

A studio's real work is its community. We give it free tools, and keep the business side as cheap as we can.

- Open pose library: about 290 3D poses as open data (CC BY-SA 4.0). Anyone can suggest a fix
- Practice Together: phones in the same room play one session in sync
- Free knowledge base: Learn articles, a Sanskrit glossary and a 3D muscle map
- Lowest-cost booking we could find (prices checked October 2026). Starter free; Studio A$15 a month
